Four out due to injuries

Blades to begin pre-season against Raiders

The Saskatoon Blades launch their pre-season with two games against the Prince Albert Raiders this weekend. This week's roster leaves the official total at 33, but with Alex Moodie, Dalton Thrower, Ryan Graham and Shane McColgan all out due to injuries only 29 are active this weekend. METRO

Court process

Chief says morale unaffected as three firefighters face assault charges

Three firefighters will remain suspended with pay while assault allegations against them are presented in court. Until that time, Chief Brian Bentley says that services and morale will remain uninterrupted and normal.

"We'll just have to wait and see what happens from here on in," said Bentley at a press conference on Thursday. "There are certainly different levels of discipline. We haven't covered any of this yet. We have to let this take its due course through the court process."

Bentley has remained relatively tight-lipped throughout the ordeal and has yet to comment on the event itself.

The firefighters are facing assault charges after an incident involving police officers in August. METRO

Funding change mean $1.1M less, FSIN claims

Federal funding changes for Aboriginal Representative Organizations and Tribal Councils could mean budget cuts for the Federation of Saskatchewan Indian Nations (FSIN).

According to Morley Watson, interim chief of the FSIN, the changes will reduce the annual budget from $1.6 million to roughly $500,000 by the 2014-15 fiscal year.

Under the new funding formula, all national and regional AROs that received funding in 2012 and 2013 will have their funding reduced.

Core funding for national AROs will be reduced by 10 per cent, while regional AROs will either have funding reduced by 10 per cent, or have a ceiling of up to $500,000 applied to their core funding.

Intimate and interactive

Songwriters' Cafés. Canadian Country Music Awards have arrived and artists are sharing the pains and joys of the creative process

jane.caulfield@metronews.ca

The Canadian Country Music Awards kicked off with a focus on the craft of creating a good song at the first of three Songwriters' Cafés at TCU Place on Thursday.

At the intimate workshops — which are also referred to as "a circle" by participants — musicians play their tunes on acoustic guitars, discuss how they came up with their songs and their own creative process. The affair gives artists a chance to talk amongst each other on stage, while periodically strumming their tunes.

Hosting the first café was local musician Jay Semko, who says the songwriter cafés are a chance to hear some of your favourite tunes in a scaled-back way.

"They really are about the art and science of songwriting," says Semko. "You get to hear more about the song."

Semko says a lot of this week's excitement is related to the country-music scene widening its boundaries regarding what is considered to be country music.

"The country music community has really been growing. They've realized that there are a lot of different tentacles out there," he said. "They've blurred that line of what is country."

Semko can be seen — and heard — at the end of the month in Regina, where his former band of '80s and '90s fame, The Northern Pikes, will be inducted into the Western Canadian Music Hall of Fame at the Western Canadian Music Awards.

Catch the next one

Pull some strings and be part of it

In case you missed last night's Songwriters' Café, you can still catch these acoustic events on Friday at 7 p.m. or Saturday at 2 p.m.

Performers at the cafés will include well-established acts such as Victoria Banks, Kira Isabella and Jake Mathews.

The cafés also introduce fans to up-and-coming artists such as Keith and Renee and Alberta singing sensation Tenille.

Tickets are still available for these events, and can be purchased through ccma.org. METRO

Schedule at ccma.org

With nearly 10 public events at the CCMAs, Saskatoon is going to be boot-scootin' all weekend long.

- Friday. CCMA Seminar, Country Cabaret, Open Mic
- Saturday. FanFest, All Star Band Awards
- Sunday. Green Carpet Great Guitar Pull, Canadian Country Music Awards

Hate charges stayed because of lengthy delay

A hate charge against a former math instructor was stayed by a Saskatchewan judge Thursday because the case experienced too many delays.

In 2008, Terrence Tremaine was charged with wilfully promoting hatred for allegedly posting remarks on the Internet about Jews.

Thursday morning, in a lengthy decision, Judge Fred Kovach pointed out that the total time delayed in the case was 1,511 days — twice the length of the maximum sentence Tremaine could be granted.

He ruled that his right to a trial within a reasonable amount of time had been violated, and attributed only about three months of that time to actions taken on the part of the defence.

"Obviously, the crown takes these charges very seriously," said prosecutor Mitchell Miller. "We'll take a look at the decision, to see if there's anything that's cause for concern."

Due to his earlier release on bail, Tremaine had been living with a number of conditions, including one that prohibited his use of the Internet. These conditions have now been dropped. One further charge, a breach of bail, is still pending.

CARRIE-MAY SIGGINS/METRO IN REGINA

Postings on the web

After Tremaine was arrested in August of 2009, police alleged that between Feb. 1, 2004, and Nov. 1, 2008, Tremaine had promoted hatred through a number of Internet postings.

- Tremaine has posted on sites like Stormfront, a white nationalist web forum, adopting the screen name "mathdoktor99," and on other websites as "JCMateri."
- Tremaine lost his job as a math lecturer at the University of Saskatchewan in 2005 after a human rights lawyer faxed the school a complaint he had made against him.

Terrence Tremaine leaves court Thursday after hate charges against him were stayed. Judge Fred Kovach ruled that there had been an unreasonable delay in getting the case to trial. CARRIE-MAY SIGGINS/METRO

Prince Harry

No investigation for naked pictures

Britain's press watchdog said Thursday it will not for now open an investigation into a tabloid's publication of nude photos of Prince Harry because royal officials have not filed a formal complaint.

The Sun was Britain's only national newspaper to carry the pictures of Harry frolicking in the nude with an unidentified woman in Las Vegas after the images appeared online and drew international attention.

The Press Complaints Commission said it received around 3,800 complaints after The Sun published the pictures, but royal officials were not among those filing. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Suicide note kept away from family for 14 months

A Canadian soldier's suicide note was withheld from his parents for 14 months by military police in what Cpl. Stuart Langridge's stepfather calls a calculated deception.

16 charges for alleged PQ gunman

One of first-degree murder. Weapon was legally registered long gun; Bain also hit with arson accusation

The man accused in the deadly shooting at a Parti Québécois gathering was slapped with 16 criminal charges on Thursday, including first-degree murder, three counts of attempted murder and arson.

The weapon used in the shooting was a legally registered long gun and was part of a broader arsenal of arms that were nearly all registered, authorities said.

None of the charges relates to premier-designate Pauline Marois, who was giving her victory speech Tuesday night when the shooting occurred. However, prosecuting attorneys said additional charges could be added.

Suspect Richard Henry Bain appeared to face the charges in a high-security courtroom behind protective glass.

Bain was represented by a legal-aid lawyer. She did not request a psychiatric evaluation for her client.

His case returns to court on Oct. 11.

Bain, who turns 62 this weekend, arrived at the courthouse in the back seat of a police vehicle as media waited outside.

The only images of him circulating so far had been from the turbulent scene outside the Metropolis club, after one man was killed and another was injured during a political celebration.

Little is known about the fishing-camp owner and what possible motivations police might have identified for the shooting on election night.

A man burst into the back of the club and shot two people, killing a stage technician. A work colleague says the victim, Denis Blanchette, had replaced her earlier in the day because she wanted to vote and pick up her daughter at school.

Police say the suspect then lit a fire in back of the club before he was tackled to the ground. Several weapons were confiscated — including the long gun allegedly used in the shooting. As he was being whisked to the police vehicle, Bain shouted, "The English are waking up." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Zimbabwe. Nurses return to hospital, still face trial

Eight nurses arrested on allegations of inciting violent protests against the firing of a Canadian doctor from hospital have been allowed to return to their posts, Zimbabwe court officials said Thursday.

Officials said the nurses and 12 others accused of staging the protests are to reappear in court on Sept. 24 on charges carrying a penalty of imprisonment or a fine.

Police fired teargas to disperse hundreds of protesters at the hospital on Aug. 17 demanding the reinstatement of Canadian Dr. Paul Thistle, fired by the Salvation Army for criticizing church leaders.

The nurses had been barred at an earlier bail hearing from returning to the mission.

Thistle, from Scarborough, Ont., was given until Sept. 1 to leave Zimbabwe by the Salvation Army but has refused to leave the country.

He said Thursday he has not been contacted by state immigration authorities or police to deport him. He dismissed reports he has been holed up in the Canadian embassy in Harare.

The Salvation Army has no authority to expel him from the country, he said. Some of those criticizing him likely meant to imply he was a fugitive with political ties, he said.

Thistle said he is staying with his Zimbabwean family in Harare and hopes to remain in the country at least until after the charges against the nurses and his supporters are heard and the crisis facing the hospital eases.

Colleagues said Thistle, who served at the hospital for 17 years, had recent disagreements with superiors over hospital development projects and funding, much of it raised by him and Canadian counterparts in the Salvation Army.

The physician was carried on the shoulders of supporters during the dispute at the mission over his future. Community elders said they wanted him to stay. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bank robbers get away. Used fake 'bomb' as weapon

Two masked gunmen got away after a Los Angeles bank heist in which they strapped what they said was a bomb to the bank manager's midsection and ordered employees to "take out all the money."

The robbers took an undisclosed amount of cash from a Bank of America branch Wednesday, but no one was injured. No arrests had been made as of Thursday.

Using a bank manager to rob his or her own business is rare, authorities said, let alone strapping a purported explosive device to an unwilling victim.

A Los Angeles County sheriff's bomb squad used a robot to disable the device, but investigators said it wasn't an explosive.

The bank manager was snatched in front of her home Wednesday morning, said sheriff's Capt. Mike Parker. She arrived at the bank wearing a device the men, armed with handguns and wearing ski masks, had strapped to her stomach.

"She was told that it was explosives and she was ordered to go into the bank and take out all the money," Parker said. "She did do that in fear for her life."

The woman ordered her fellow employees to remove the cash, and it was thrown to the men who were waiting outside, authorities said.

Parker would only say there was "a decent amount" of money at the bank and the manager did enter the safe.

Authorities haven't said how the bank manager was targeted. Investigators are trying to determine if there were any video surveillance cameras that captured the incident. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Officials on defensive after girl went unnoticed at murder site

Found 8 hours later. Pair of sisters, 4 and 7, placed under police care following French shooting rampage that killed 4 adults

French authorities struggled Thursday to explain why no one found a four-year-old girl for eight hours at a blood-strewn crime scene as she huddled in a car under the skirt of a corpse — apparently her dead mother or grandmother.

The stunning discovery Thursday of the girl, apparently unharmed, heightened the drama around a mysterious shooting rampage in the French Alps that left four adults dead and a seven-year-old girl hospitalized after being shot and brutally beaten.

The reason for the slayings remained unclear a day after a cyclist came across the corpses in a wooded area near the mountain village of Chevaline. It took on increasingly international ramifications, with links emerging Thursday tying the slain family to Britain, Iraq and Sweden.

International links

- The prosecutor said the car was registered to a British man born in Baghdad. He said the man, who had moved to Britain in 2002, and his family had been vacationing in France since August.
- Sweden confirmed that one of the victims was Swedish. French authorities found a Swedish passport that appears to be that of an older woman slain in the car, born in 1938, as well as an Iraqi passport.

Prosecutor Eric Maillaud said investigators were searching for suspects and studying all possibilities, including a score-settling attack or simply that the family was "in the wrong place at the wrong time."

The bodies of a man and two women were found shot to death in a BMW and the body of an unrelated male French cyclist was found on the ground nearby. Maillaud described a methodical killing, with three victims shot in the head.

At a news conference, authorities tried to explain how the four-year-old went unnoticed.

"The girl was found totally immobile, in fact, on the floor of the vehicle, behind the front passenger-side seat, under the legs — under the skirt — of one of the women who were killed, around a large travel bag, totally invisible and silent, which explains why no one saw her before," Maillaud said.

One explanation investigators offered was that the man who discovered the bodies and the rescuers he summoned concentrated their attention on the seven-year-old who had severe injuries.

Maillaud insisted police at the scene had no reason to suspect that another child was present, and that they were trying to keep the crime scene intact to allow forensics and other experts to arrive from Paris.

CRTC warns Tories over internal do-not-call list

Canada's telecom watchdog says the Conservative party has fallen short when it comes to its do-not-call list.

The CRTC's chief compliance and enforcement officer expressed her concern in a letter to Conservative party executive director Dan Hilton.

Andrea Rosen says the CRTC has launched an investigation prompted by a recent complaint about how the party handles internal do-not-call requests.

Requests

- The CRTC has also asked the Conservatives to make sure all scripts used on calls are clear, and that third-party telemarketing firms follow all the same rules.

Political parties are exempt from the national do-not-call list, but they still have to keep an internal list and respect the wishes of people who tell them they don't want to be contacted.

The Conservative party keeps two internal do-not-call lists: One for solicitation purposes and another for outreach or voter identification.

Rosen says keeping two lists has created some confusion, and the CRTC has asked the party to keep a single list and respect the people's wishes to not be called.

Conservative party spokesman Fred Delorey says changes were made once the CRTC raised the issue.

He noted the party has not been fined or faced any sanctions over what he called an "administrative issue."

"Unlike the Liberals who were fined nearly $5,000 by CRTC for placing misleading robocalls, this was simply an administrative issue with our live calling," he said in an email.

The CRTC recently hit the federal Liberal riding association in Guelph with a $4,900 fine for robocalls that broke the rules during last year's election campaign.

The CRTC says a recorded message that went out to voters on April 30, 2011, violated telemarketing rules by failing to state that it came from the Liberal party or MP Frank Valeriote's campaign.

That CRTC fine pertained only to a breach of telemarketing rules and not to any possible violation of the Canada Elections Act.

Businessman gets 4 years for death, rape threats

A New York eyewear website operator who threatened some of his customers with murder or rape when they complained about their eyeglasses was sentenced Thursday to four years in prison by a judge who said he terrorized them.

Vitaly Borker, 35, shook his head and wiped his hand across his eyes as U.S. District Judge Richard Sullivan announced the sentence, along with nearly $100,000 US in fines and restitution.

The judge noted several people who testified at a July hearing said they called police or installed security systems because of threats Borker made after they complained about their glasses.

"You were terrifying people, putting them in fear of their lives, of being viciously raped," the judge said.

Borker pleaded guilty last year to making threats and fraud charges.

Illinois

Ex-cop convicted of killing wife

Drew Peterson — a crass former Illinois police officer who gained notoriety after his much-younger wife vanished in 2007 — was convicted Thursday of murdering a previous wife in a potentially precedent-setting case centred on secondhand hearsay statements.

Peterson, 58, did not react as the judge announced jurors had found him guilty of first-degree murder in the death of his third wife, Kathleen Savio.

Peterson faces a maximum 60-year prison term when sentenced Nov. 26.

The trial was the first of its kind in Illinois, with prosecutors building their case largely on hearsay thanks to a new law tailored to Peterson's case. That hearsay, prosecutors had said, would let his third and fourth wives "speak from their graves" through family and friends to convict Peterson.

Hearsay is information reported by a witness that is not based on the witness' direct knowledge.

Fracking blamed for B.C. quakes. Gas extraction caused tremors: Regulator

A spate of small earthquakes in B.C.'s remote northeastern corner were caused by a controversial technique used to extract natural gas from shale rock, says a report by the province's energy regulator.

The B.C. oil-and-gas commission launched its probe after a "number of anomalous, low-level seismic events" were detected in the Horn River Basin, a gas-rich shale formation that's attracted some of the industry's biggest players.

"The investigation has concluded that the events observed within remote and isolated areas of the Horn River Basin between 2009 and 2011 were caused by fluid injection during hydraulic fracturing in proximity to pre-existing faults," the agency said in a recent report.

In order to break the rock and free the gas trapped inside of it, companies inject a combination of water, sand and chemicals underground at high pressure.

The process, known as hydraulic fracturing, or fracking, has drawn concern from environmentalists and landowners for the amount of water the process requires and for potential contamination of groundwater.

Studies have also linked fracking to earthquakes around shale formations in England and Oklahoma.

Court. Proceeding sheds light on how the federal government decides when they deem someone a terrorist risk

A former federal cabinet minister told an Ontario court Thursday he had been warned there was no way of knowing whether information in a national-security certificate used to detain accused terrorist Mohamed Mahjoub was obtained through torture.

Former public safety minister Stockwell Day said he signed the security certificate in February 2008 following "numerous" discussions and inquiry with intelligence and border officials.

Testifying by videolink from Vancouver, Day said the former director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service gave him a memo stating that it was "difficult, if not impossible" to determine if the information used as evidence was torture-derived because some of it had come from countries with a reputation of employing those practices.

The federal government is trying to deport the Egyptian-born man using a national-security certificate — a rarely used immigration tool for deporting non-Canadians considered a risk to the country — claiming he was a high-ranking member of an Islamic terrorist organization with links to Osama Bin Laden.

Second Canadian recession still possible: Moody's

Debt. Study finds that consumer spending may drop as debt-to-income ratio hits record high

There is more than a 20 per cent risk of Canada falling into a second recession — and though much of that risk comes from outside our borders, Canadians' sky-high debt loads could push the economy over the edge, warns a new report from Moody's Analytics.

With debt-to-income ratios at an all-time high around 150 per cent, Canadians have stretched themselves to the limit since the recession and have left little head room to buffer against another economic downturn, Moody's suggests in the report released Thursday.

"With the economy now relying heavily on the continued expansion of household spending, any retrenchment in the consumer sector will likely place the economy on the brink of a second recession," the report's authors say.

The study — "Storm Clouds Gather Around Canadian Consumer Credit" — says while Canada has managed to outperform other G7 countries since the recession it has been propped up by consumer spending, while exports continue to lag.

Statistics Canada reported last week that the economy grew at an annual rate of 1.8 per cent in the second quarter. That beat analyst expectations, but it was the third quarter in a row for sluggish performance below two per cent.

And there is potential for exports to further weaken, given the very real possibility that Europe's debt crisis could deepen and spill over to other countries, and the fiscal crisis that Canada's largest trading partner, the U.S., is also facing.

"The situation that Canada faces is much riskier than in 2007-2008 when the first global financial crisis occurred," said Mark Hopkins, a senior economist at Moody's Analytics and one of the authors of the report.

With Canadians so deep in debt, it would be extremely difficult for domestic spending to pick up slack in the economy if things started to go downhill. That could result in a serious downward spiral in employment levels, household spending and the quantity and quality of credit outstanding, the report says.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Causes

- Debt. Due to record debts accrued over the first recession, domestic spending is unlikely to support the economy.
- Jobs. Income from exports with trade partners are not materializing, leading to weaker jobs.
- Income and interest. Income growth has slowed; interest rates are expected to rise.

Sites like eBay are being asked to implement stricter regulations, but I'm more interested in the delivery. I can barely find an Xpresspost box to send my mom a coat, but people are shipping rhinoceroses? That's gotta be a lot of stamps.

5 Day job. Former football star Michael Strahan fulfilled his 2008 prophecy by becoming Kelly Ripa's new co-host. After winning the Super Bowl, Regis Philbin asked what he wanted to do next. Strahan replied: "Your job looks pretty good." I've used that line at every job interview, and it has never worked.

6 Get Smart-phone. Millions of Apple device IDs, which track user activity, were uncovered by hackers on an FBI agent's laptop. The news sparked tremendous public outcry regarding what American's claim is a breach of privacy. Government officials across the country were surprised to hear that the term "privacy" was still in use.

7 TIFF is back with a vengeance. A little Shakespeare here, some Tolstoy there, and a Spike Lee documentary about Michael Jackson. I've got my eyes on Jack Kerouac's On the Road, starring the princess of pout, Kristen Stewart. Mostly because I was never intoxicated enough to finish the book, but also because Stewart might be one relationship question away from an epic hissy fit that could make YouTube history, and it would be nice to see it happen in Canada.

8 CIFF, not TIFF. There's a buzz surrounding a film that will be unveiled at the Calgary International Film Festival. Mr. Viral is a dark comedy thriller about viral marketing that's been described as Mad Men meets Fight Club. In a novel attempt to raise money, producers offered subliminal photo placement to small online investors, so don't be surprised if you leave the theatre with the mysterious urge to call your ex-girlfriend.

A film about the beauty of language should be better written than The Words. HANDOUT

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Story falls flat in film about storytelling

The Words. Flimsy characters, an ending filled with ennui and a pretentious premise make this movie about a novelist one to miss

Richard: Mark, words fail me. Or should I say, The Words failed me. A movie about the beauty of language should be better written than this. Let's put aside the bizarre story-within-a-story-within-a-movie structure for a second and focus on the words themselves. We are supposed to believe the Dennis Quaid character is a master wordsmith, but when he reads from his book it's as if he's reciting a police report. "And on a Friday afternoon, they were married at City Hall. They honeymooned in Paris." Where's the art in that?

Mark: Well, Richard, maybe the Quaid character is a Hemingway acolyte. And there are numerous references to him in the film. But what the movie is about is the power of storytelling. So how about this? Just tell the story! What is the purpose of the Quaid framing device except to show off Olivia Wilde's doe eyed frozen smirk?

RC: Perhaps it was seen as another opportunity for different characters to mouth platitudes. The blurred line between real life and fiction could have been an interesting plot device, but instead is just pretentious and dull. Are we supposed to take any of this seriously when the deepest any character gets is to tell us that great artists must choose between life and fiction? "They're very close, but they're two different things." Thanks for clearing that up.

MB: The movie actually sucked me in for the first half. Then it just sucked. I liked Jeremy Irons but I found that everyone's motivations were completely phony. And doesn't Bradley Cooper know that Paul Dano has the franchise rights to playing struggling novelists this year? And for a movie that's all about the gift of narrative, could someone have written an ending?

RC: I hate to just pile up on this movie, but it doesn't leave me with many options. Irons has something going until he says, "Wait, this is when it gets interesting." If only he were right. It's all just so earnest and poorly told, as if it is a lesson in how NOT to describe a writer's life. The abrupt ending didn't bother me that much. I was just glad it was over.

MB: I thought the movie was setting us up for a blackmail thriller, which would have been obvious, but nothing could have been as bad as the bloodless, whimpering ennui of the last third of this film.

Synopsis

Dennis Quaid plays Clay Hammond, a bestselling author reading from his book The Words. He spins the tale of Rory (Bradley Cooper), a struggling writer who publishes a manuscript he found tucked inside an antique briefcase. Taking credit for the words, he is forced to face his bad deed when the author of the book, an old man who lost the manuscript 50 years before, enters his life.

Milla Jovovich likes hotel shampoo, and her job as queen zombie killer

Resident Evil franchise. Star of series talks about fifth film and the possibility of a female version of the Expendables

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Milla Jovovich is on her fifth installment of the Resident Evil franchise, and she's not about to slow down. HANDOUT

When I first see Milla Jovovich, she's carrying a handful of hotel toiletries to her bag, explaining that she's taking them home with her. "I have guest rooms, and I think it's super-chic to put them out, and then when people are finished with them, either they buy their own or they know it's time to leave," she explains. "I can obviously afford to buy shampoo, but it's a principle thing, right?" Jovovich certainly can afford any toiletries she wants, since her zombie-fighting film series is up to its fifth installment, Resident Evil: Retribution, and it shows no sign of slowing down.

When you get to the fifth film in a franchise, how do you keep track of the story?

I'm married to the writer-director. That helps. Because literally, I think up until last year I totally thought Alice was the bad guy. And Paul [W.S. Anderson] was like, "No, but don't you remember in No. 1, the whole flashback sequence?" And I was like, "Are you sure?" And he's like, "I wrote the script. I think I'm sure." But pretty much there is no script. Michelle [Rodriguez] and I like to say that Paul just has a video camera and presses record. So it's pretty much like reality TV.

There's talk of an all-female version of the Expendables.

We're the ones that set it up. Paul and I have an idea for a female Expendables project, but Expendables is a very conceptual film, so how do you translate that into a female genre without being derivative? There's not that many girls that you would associate with that, do you know what I mean? There are many more guys that are known as action stars than women, so how would you make a female Expendables in that way? It's tough, but we have a really interesting idea that I won't tell you about right now, but it's really cool and it would be sort of like a female Expendables. It would be strong women taking vengeance.

Milla's Twitter rule

- Devote the time. "If I'm going to tweet, I need to tweet and be able to have an hour to tweet. I can't just tweet one thing and then disappear. It's a Russian thing. I'm a guilt-ridden human being, I live in guilt. Always. If I'm going to tweet, I want to chat, I want to have quality time. I could not tweet for a month, which I think is OK, but when I do tweet, I give them a good hour of my time. I don't want to be halfway there."

What's the deal with Perry and Mayer?

It's getting tough for folks to keep up with Katy Perry's romance with John Mayer. Two weeks ago, the pair was supposedly off when Mayer dumped Perry after a couple of months of "casual dating," but that doesn't explain why Perry and Mayer have been spotted together twice in the last week, according to X-17.

First, they hit up a Labour Day weekend music festival in downtown L.A., and then just a few days later they were spotted sneaking out of a restaurant after having dinner together.

People who have recently broken up don't usually spend that much time together.

Pattinson's drinking problem is 'out of control': Source

Friends of Robert Pattinson reportedly want the actor to seek treatment for a drinking problem they say he's had for years and has only gotten worse since revelations of girlfriend Kristen Stewart's infidelity came to light, according to Hollyscoop.

Pattinson "has a huge drinking problem" and his friends and family "think that he needs to go to rehab," a source says.

But apparently his drinking is nothing new, according to the source: "He was drinking every day on the set of Cosmopolis and everyone on the set was aware of this," the source says. "His drinking is out of control. He loves vodka and drinks alone."

Lohan sets record straight about Tom Cruise story

Somehow, Lindsay Lohan got pulled into a recent Vanity Fair story about the Church of Scientology auditioning actresses to be Tom Cruise's girlfriend before he married Katie Holmes, and Lohan just wants everyone to know she has no idea what the magazine is talking about.

"Lindsay met with Tom before he met Katie," a source tells the Huffington Post.

"At first, she was super-excited to work with Tom and thought it was about a role in Mission Impossible. It soon became clear that he wasn't looking for an actress but something very different."

Looking to clear her name, Lohan was quick to take to Twitter to post, "I just want everyone (and Tom Cruise) to know, that I have/had NO part in the VF story — nor has anyone in my life, personal and work-related."

I try not to take things too seriously — especially wine. Knowing my booze beverage of choice can pour pretty pretentious just makes me more than happy to poke fun at its reputation for being a glass for the upper class.

In my slightly twisted mind, wine is the people's drink and should never be put on a pedestal or treated like a liquid of luxury (even if the bottle costs a few hundred bucks).

That's why I appreciate winemakers with a sense of humour. I'm not talking about their juice. It's more about how they brand their output. The Aussies are masters at making classy, yet accessible, wines with amazingly original names.

When it comes to old school fun Mitolo's 2010 Jester Shiraz ($21.95 - $24.99) is more than a thick, textured red from the Mclaren Vale in South Australia. Its name was inspired by jester Richard Tarlton — one of Queen Elizabeth I's favourite comedians.

Dark, deep and layered with licorice, spice and chewy black fruit, it's a perfect late summer barbecue companion for steak or a choice slab of beef.

Serve restaurant taste at your dinner table

Spicy Pork and Polenta. Take the mystery out of cooking this maize, which is a staple in Italian cuisine

Most people consider polenta a restaurant food. That's because as good as this creamy, cheesy Italian staple is, few of us have the hour needed to crank it out.

But hidden on the grocer's shelves is a shortcut that can help get polenta on your dinner table any day of the week in minutes — prepared polenta. This is different — and far better — than a related product known as instant polenta. But first, some polenta basics.

Polenta is a traditional starch in Italian cooking, an alternative to pasta, rice and potatoes that pairs deliciously well with robust sauces and meats. Polenta is made by slowly simmering and stirring cornmeal with chicken broth or water. It usually also is seasoned with Parmesan cheese and butter.

While the dry product called instant polenta promises results in five minutes or less, it tends to be grainy and flavourless. The better choice is tube-style pre-cooked polenta, usually sold in the grocer's natural foods section. This product is ready to slice and toss on the grill, under the broiler or into a skillet to pan-fry.

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 1/2 cup mirin
- 1/4 cup crushed pepper sauce
- 1/4 cup seasoned rice vinegar
- 2 tbsp soy sauce
- 1 lb thinly sliced pork cutlets
- 18-oz tube prepared polenta, cut into chunks
- 1 cup milk
- 2 tbsp toasted sesame oil
- 4 oz crumbled feta cheese
- Salt and ground black pepper

1. In stainless steel bowl, stir mirin, crushed pepper sauce, vinegar and soy sauce. Add pork, toss, refrigerate 20 mins.

2. Meanwhile, in saucepan over medium heat, combine polenta and milk. Stir until soft and heated through, 6 to 7 minutes. Cover and set aside.

3. In skillet, heat oil over medium-high. Remove pork from the marinade (reserve marinade) and add to pan. Brown cutlets on each side 4 mins. Add marinade from bowl to skillet and bring to a boil.

4. Stir feta cheese into polenta, then season with salt and pepper. To serve, spoon polenta onto each plate, then top with pork cutlets and sauce from pan. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Perfect pesto touch

Whether you use your own pesto or a store-bought gluten-free version, this is an easy supper that is delicious served alongside pasta or a rice pilaf.

Ingredients

- 4 boneless pork loin chops, about 625 g (1 1/4 lbs)
- 5 ml (1 tsp) dried oregano leaves
- 1 ml (1/4 tsp) freshly ground pepper
- 10 ml (2 tsp) extra-virgin olive oil (divided)
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) gluten-free basil pesto
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- 1 red bell pepper, thinly sliced
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) chopped fresh oregano
- 150 ml (2/3 cup) sodium-reduced, gluten-free vegetable cocktail
- Pinch salt

1. Sprinkle pork chops with oregano and pepper; set aside.

2. In an ovenproof non-stick skillet, heat 5 ml (1 tsp) of the oil over medium-high heat and brown chops on both sides. Spread pesto over chops and place in a 200 C (400 F) oven for about 10 minutes or until hint of pink remains.

3. Meanwhile, in another non-stick skillet, heat remaining oil over medium heat and cook onion, bell pepper and fresh oregano for about 8 minutes or until starting to brown and soften. Add vegetable cocktail and salt; simmer for about 5 minutes or until absorbed.

Riders ready for Banjo Bowl kickoff

CFL. Saskatchewan preparing for 'new team' on Sunday in Winnipeg

ROB BROWN
Metro in Regina

The Roughriders are cautiously optimistic heading into this weekend's Banjo Bowl.

Despite last weekend's big 52-0 win over Winnipeg, the Riders are not taking the Blue Bombers lightly — they see the game as a chance to pick up another win and begin a trip out of the CFL's West Division basement and back into playoff contention.

On Sunday, the 4-5 Riders hope to make it two in a row against the 2-7 Bombers, who are playing their first home game under new head coach Tim Burke.

Riders' head coach Corey Chamblin said his team knows Winnipeg made mistakes during the Labour Day Classic — mistakes he knows the Bombers will have corrected this week come the Banjo Bowl.

"We capitalized on a lot of mistakes that the Bombers won't make this week," said Chamblin.

Riders running back Kory Sheets, who was named a CFL mid-season offensive all-star Thursday, said the Riders haven't let complacency kick in knowing they'll face a seemingly down-and-out Winnipeg club.

"We're preparing for the game the same way — this is a new team and a new week," said Sheets.

Chamblin said that, come Sunday, Winnipeg will see an improved Rider team on both sides of the ball and on special teams.

"(Weston) Dressler is a playmaker who he needed to be there (last week on special teams), and he was," said Chamblin.

He added Joe Lobendahn's performance will be even better than his strong debut last week on defence — now that he has spent more time with the team.

"He's going to be better," said Chamblin

Kick off is at 11 a.m. Mountain time at Canad Inns Stadium.

NO ROOM ON ARGOS FOR AGING RAMBO

CFL EXTRA POINTS
Dan Toth
toronto@metronews.ca

Toronto Argos: We know Argos GM Jim Barker is loyal to a fault when handling veteran players, none more so than Ken-Yon Rambo. Surely, Rambo's lackadaisical Labour Day performance in Hamilton, albeit in his first game back from injury, will be his last CFL game. Rambo, who turns 34 next month, made two insignificant catches, dropped a pass and was called offside. If Argos newcomer Jason Barnes is incapable of securing that position, it's time to start beating the bushes for new talent.

B.C. Lions: You can't blame B.C. for taking a cautious approach over the potential return of former rookie of the year Solomon Elimimian. Cut from two NFL camps, he has until Sept. 13 to report to the Lions. If the linebacker does return to Vancouver only to play out his option, he is merely a short-term upgrade whose head and heart might be elsewhere the rest of the CFL season. Re-signing Elimimian to a long-term deal is a priority.

Edmonton Eskimos: Like it or not, Eskimos head coach Kavis Reed has a quarterbacking controversy in his locker-room. On one hand, it's great to have aging QB Kerry Joseph on the roster as insurance against Steven Jyles faltering. But now that Joseph's looked more than capable in the last two appearances, going back to Jyles might be an unpopular decision.

Calgary Stampeders: It's comical to still see the Stampeders taking stupid penalties game after game, year after year. The team's long-standing Achilles' heal is a key reason Tom Higgins lost his job in Calgary after the 2007 season, and years later the club continues to pile up the simply selfish infractions under John Hufnagel. If fines don't work, benching (or worse) is the only answer.

Saskatchewan Roughriders: Nothing like a 52-0 shutout to end a losing skid and buoy the spirits of the Rider Nation's doomsdayers. The Riders aren't that good and the Bombers aren't that bad, but suddenly the Green Machine is a playoff contender again after weeks of fans demanding the club blow it up and start over, beginning with QB Darian Durant.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers: Lose again this week and the Bombers will launch a massive airlift of players in and out of Winnipeg. Although still just two points out of third in the East, falling to 2-8 would trigger significant change on the field, if not the front office.

Huskies hit road for big test against Bisons

Football. University of Saskatchewan coach says squad has to match Manitoba's enthusiasm

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

The University of Saskatchewan Huskies' clash with the University of Manitoba Bisons will be an important one for the team's playoff hopes.

Huskies head coach Brian Towriss said that any time the Huskies and the Bisons hit the field it's going to be an interesting game.

"We've had some big games against them in the last little while, a couple of conference championships, and they play well against us. They always have," said Towriss. "We're going to have to be on our toes.... A win here can go a long ways in taking a step towards a playoff down the road."

Towriss said the Huskies will also be coming up against a ramped-up group of Bison, something he hopes his team can match, as this game will be an important one in terms of the Huskies' confidence on the road.

Where to be

Kickoff is at 1 p.m. Saturday at University Stadium in Winnipeg.

"It's been a long time since (the Bisons) have won their first game of the year, so they're going to be fired up and we have to match their enthusiasm at the start," said Towriss. "Winnipeg is always a tough place to play, they're a much different team at home than they are on the road, they play with a lot more confidence.

"This one's important and I think we match up pretty well," he said. "We're playing more consistent than we were at this time last year and we're excited and ready to get down there."

Ferrer fights through to U.S. Open semis

David Ferrer celebrates in New York City on Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

David Ferrer needed a mid-match pedicure of sorts. He seemed bothered when his opponent got a mid-game medical timeout. He was down a break in the fifth set.

In the end, though, the indefatigable Spaniard was barely better, as he usually is when matches go the distance.

With his high-energy brand of leg-churning, ball-chasing tennis, the fourth-seeded Ferrer outlasted eighth-seeded Janko Tipsarevic of Serbia 6-3, 6-7 (5), 2-6, 6-3, 7-6 (4) in four hours, 31 minutes Thursday to reach the U.S. Open semifinals for the second time.

Ferrer trailed 4-1 in the last set, but in the next game, Tipsarevic slammed to the ground while chasing a drop shot and stayed down for a few moments. Tipsarevic later had his right thigh taped up.

Ferrer, also a semifinalist at Flushing Meadows in 2007, has won four consecutive five-setters and is 17-9 overall.

When the match ended on Tipsarevic's backhand miss, Ferrer raised his arms, then knelt near the baseline. The weary foes met at the net for a hug.

"I don't have words," said Ferrer, who reached the semi-finals at the French Open in June. "It was a very emotional match."

Might have been the best of these two weeks so far, filled with twists and turns and plenty of theatre.

Ferrer had various issues Thursday, including a dispute over a line call early in the fifth, and a bothersome toe on his right foot that a trainer worked on in the third — removing Ferrer's sneaker and sock and using a pair of nail clippers to help fix things. At another changeover, Ferrer gestured wildly while exhorting himself between bites of a banana.

NFL. Bills' 'Super Mario' feeling like a rookie again

It's Tebow Time for the New York Jets, and Super Mario's big debut for the Buffalo Bills.

Tim Tebow and Mario Williams, two of the NFL's highest-profile players, changed teams this off-season and are hoping to have huge impacts — starting with the regular-season opener at MetLife Stadium on Sunday.

"I really don't get nervous, but it does feel like my rookie year all over again," said Williams, who signed a six-year, $100-million US deal with the Bills in March after six years in Houston. "It does feel like I got drafted again. I'm pretty sure it'll be a little bit, a little anxiety, but it'll be fine."

The Bills are banking on the fact that Williams will add a big-time boost to their defence, wreaking havoc on opposing quarterbacks every Sunday and helping Buffalo improve a defence that managed just 29 sacks last season.

Quoted

"I just want to be able to help any way I can."
Tim Tebow, Jets backup QB

"You kind of sit back and go, 'whew,'" Jets coach Rex Ryan said. "He's a tremendous player. Your first thought is you're going against him, then you think, 'He does get to play New England twice, so that's kind of a good thing.' If we can survive, hopefully New England will struggle with him. That's it. It's like, 'Whew.' The conference, our league is getting better. You steal one of the top pass rushers in the game. Clearly, you think, 'Oh man.' You hope that he doesn't go into our division, but here he is."

And, so is Tebow, the popular backup quarterback whose role in New York's offence has been kept mostly under wraps all off-season to keep defences on their toes. Tebow will work in new offensive co-ordinator Tony Sparano's wildcat packages and as the personal punt protector on special teams.

Beyond that, anybody's guess is as good as Buffalo's.

NHL. Fehr, Bettman and Daly decline salary during NHL lockout

None of the top executives involved in the NHL's collective bargaining negotiations will continue to be paid if the league enacts a lockout next week.

Donald Fehr, the executive director of the NHL Players' Association, says he stopped drawing a salary on July 1 and a source told The Canadian Press that commissioner Gary Bettman and deputy commissioner Bill Daly plan to follow suit if a new agreement can't be reached by Sept. 15.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You will do almost anything to avoid boredom but the planets warn that if you go too far today, you might later decide that boredom is not such a bad thing after all. Never forget that actions have consequences.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Someone is sure to disapprove of what you do today. Should that stop you from doing it? No way! If anything, you should show your independence by doing it even more. They will get the message.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
If you feel that your life is in a bit of a rut you should do something about it today. Try doing the opposite of what you usually do. Don't worry that others might not approve — that's what makes it fun.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You will get the chance to change something that should really have been changed weeks, if not months, ago. If it's a habit that is holding you back be brave and cut it out of your life once and for all.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Make it your business to get involved in a cause that helps people who are too weak to help themselves. Don't worry that by doing so you might make powerful enemies — you have powerful friends to protect you.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
With the Sun in your sign linked to Jupiter today you won't hesitate to do something out of the ordinary. Even people who know you well will shake their heads and wonder what's come over you.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You seem to have come into some money but don't spend too much time admiring your good fortune because you need to build on what you've been given. It doesn't have to be easy come, easy go.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
What happens today may catch you by surprise but you can still profit from it if you act quickly. The planets indicate that if you take a risk it will pay off in a big way. What have you got to lose?

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The direct approach is the best approach, especially where partnerships are concerned. Let others know how you feel and don't worry that you might hurt their feelings. It's your feelings that matter, so tell it like it is.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Today's Sun-Jupiter link will help you shake things up a bit, especially where your daily routine is concerned. In a nutshell, you need to be more adventurous. Never let the past or old habits hold you back.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Do something that takes even your best friends by surprise today. It's time you reminded certain people, both at home and at work, that you have a mind of your own and are not afraid to use it.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You may be perfectly entitled to get annoyed with someone and lay down the law but isn't there a better way to deal with the situation? If you upset them needlessly it could be self-defeating in the long-term.
